10,000 Beacon Fires to Blaze Across Canada

Montreal.—Ten thousand beacon fires will blaze across the dominion from the Atlantic to the Pacific on the night of July 1 next to celebrate the jubilee of confederation, according to tentative plans already drafted.

Premier Mackenzie King has given notice of a money bill calling for the voting by parliament of $250,000 for the purpose of providing for the observance of the nation's sixtieth birthday.

In preparing for the function the federal government will co-operate with the Association of Canadian Clubs. Also there will be an interdepartment committee under the chairmanship of O. D. Skelton, undersecretary of state for external affairs.

That committee will make a careful study of the best means to properly record the event and will also make recommendations to the Canadian clubs. It is expected that the schools and higher institutions of education, along with various public organizations, will be invited to co-operate.

Egyptians Stirred Over Queen Nefertari Bust

Cairo, Egypt.—The vernacular press declares the Egyptian government takes a serious view of the bust of Queen Nefertari, and failing this restitution the department of antiquities will refuse any application of Professor Borchardt, German Egyptologist, for permission to excavate. Moreover, it is stated negotiations on several other questions now progressing between the Egyptian and German governments will be suspended pending a settlement in accordance with the Egyptian viewpoint of the question of Nefertari's bust.

SARAJEVO SINKS INTO LETHARGY

That's Where War Started, If You've Forgotten.

Sarajevo, Yugo-Slavia.—This little Bosnian town, where the World war started, is getting the reputation of being one of the most picturesque and sleepy towns in the world.

Sarajevo's "ninety-and-nine" minarets and its "forty-times-forty" cemeteries, mausoleums and mosques symbolize the lethargy and oriental fatalism of the city.

All over the town are slender white minarets that look like funereal shafts against the gray mountains. Hither, thither and yon are Moslem cemeteries, pictures of abandonment and desolation. The headstones are toppled over, broken, leaning in every direction. The Mosems apparently do not pay much attention to their dead.

The abandoned cemeteries are typical of the spirit of indifference and negligence which dominates the town. There is a saying in Bosnia, applied especially to a homely woman, that "She is as unattractive and uninteresting as a Turkish cemetery."

Every 3rd quarter of the city is dirty and full of odors, but withal is extraordinarily picturesque and colorful. Everywhere are labyrinths of bazaars, displaying fine copperware, leather filigree work, elaborate made linens and laces, rugs and other oriental wares. The streets, especially the narrow and devious lanes in the Turkish quarter, present scenes of endless variety and interest.

Women dressed in fairly modern European style elbow the ghostly figures of black draped, heavily veiled Turkish women. Gayly clad Moslem girls, with bright woolen scarfs over their heads, slide deftly in and out through the crowd. In the narrow, boothlined bazaars Mohammedan men in their national dress gaze bewilderingly at a group of American tourists dressed in short skirts and "plus fours."

U. S. "Promised Land" to This Young Actress

New York.—America has become the actual "land of promise come true" for a sixteen-year-old English actress, Gemma Fagan.

"Father has made repeated promises to let me act in one of his plays at home," she says. "But only now that we are in New York will the promise be made good. Now I know why so many persons call the United States the 'promised land.'"

Gemma Fagan is the daughter of James P. Fagan, London manager, who is both author and producer of "And So to Bed," a comedy about Samuel Pepys, the diarist, and the court of King Charles II, which played for ten months at the Savoy theater in London. Her mother is Mary Grey, also a well-known actress. Her grandfather is Sir John Fagan, noted Irish surgeon.

When an American producer asked her father to bring his English actors to this country she joined them for the voyage. Although she had not appeared on the stage before she surprised her father by learning the lines of one of the smaller parts with such skill that he cast her for the part.

New Capital Makes Wild Magpies Wild

Canberra, Australia.—Police of the recently established capital of Australia have been required to add hunting to their ordinary duties because of the invasion of the new city by wild magpies from the surrounding wilderness.

The savage birds, as if resenting the invasion of their domain, have attacked the children of government officials and in one instance set upon a man, biting him severely on the head.

Patrolmen with rifles have been sent out to rid the city of the invaders.

English Judge Grants 110 Divorces in Sixty Seconds

London.—English justice has the reputation of moving fast, but Judge Mackinnon in divorce court stepped on the accelerator so hard that the bandage over the eyes of the Goddess of Justice almost blew off.

In just 60 seconds he granted 110 absolute divorces. He still had a few seconds left to take out one case at the request of a man who had come all the way from South Africa and order a retrial.

Home of President Monroe Sold for Debt

New York.—A tumbledown old-fashioned house on Crosby street where President James Monroe once lived was sold recently for $10,000 to Mrs. Teresa Browning, who held a mortgage of $15,770 against the property.

The house has stood still while the city of which it once was a social center moved past it and left behind a neighborhood of tawdry tenements.

A generation too busy to un shrine antiquity forgot that here once lived the man who formulated America's most famous foreign policy, the Monroe doctrine.

Rev. W. G. Boggs

It is with profound sorrow that we record the passing homeward, of Rev. W. G. Boggs. His death was sudden and a severe shock to his family and friends. On Saturday evening at 6 o'clock he became absent from the body and present with the Lord. Though he had been at Pamplin only one year he had won the love and respect of all who knew him. He was sweet spirited, genial and charming in his manner. His churches knew him as pastor, organizer and leader. The religious forces of the town recognized him as an outstanding champion of personal purity and righteousness. The Methodists of the state regarded him as an influential leader. Those who knew and loved him will bear witness of the greatness of his soul and the bigness of his heart and the strength of his christian character.

We are greatly grieved by his homegoing, but God has taken to Himself our brother in the midst of his career as a kingdom-builder but feel that He is infinite in wisdom and goodness and makes no mistakes. We feel that the church, town and state has lost a great man and his going to us is a great bereavement in the absence of a comrade, a friend and a brother. We extend to his family our deepest and most heartfelt sympathy in the loss of a dear father.
